

AN INTRODUCTION TO

CLINICAL

AROMATHERAPY

SATURDAY, FEB. 24: 10AM-5PM • TUCSON, AZ • $175

The use of aromatherapy in the healthcare industry has grown rapidly in recent years. Inadequately trained staff using essential oils incorrectly can be risky, especially if the oils used are not suitable for therapeutic use. Training is essential for safety and effectiveness, and for the essential oils to be beneficial to a patient's health. This course explores the use of essential oils in clinical situations. It will introduce you to the art and science of holistic aromatherapy and its exceptional healing powers. Learn which oils are anti-inflammatory, antihistaminic, anti-bacterial, and anti-viral, and how to apply them for healing.

YOU WILL LEARN:

- the nature and make-up of essential oils
- the effect of therapeutic essential oils on the body and the emotions
- how, when and where to apply essential oils
- how to heal viral infections, chronic degenerative diseases, allergy or autoimmune diseases, nervous system and hormonal imbalances
- the healing qualities of 15 essential oils with information on blending and creating recipes

Included: a sample kit of 15 essential oils, 3 small bottles for your oil blends, and a manual to support the material covered in class. Please bring a 4 oz. (1-1/2 cup) glass container of jojoba, almond or peach kernel oil for making your own blends.
